Introduction – Decision Making

Many situations arise in a multi-game and multi-limit poker room where the rules need interpretation, clarification and enforcement. Most table decisions that we face as a major poker room are adequately solved by simply following the appropriate passage in our rulebook. We have formulated several general guidelines to deal with the highly unusual situation that cannot be resolved in this manner.

The most important consideration in decision-making is following the concept of fairness. Despite the comprehensiveness of our rulebook and the meticulous care taken in striving to cover every situation properly, a situation will arise where strict adherence to the letter of the law would be obviously unfair. An unintentional error is less serious than a deliberate violation. The intent of an action will be taken into consideration. Therefore, in certain instances as deemed appropriate, a floor person's decision should be based upon the spirit of the rules rather than the inflexible interpretation of the rules.

A player should assume some of the responsibility for noticing and calling attention to mistakes, particularly when his own interests are involved.

The player who has done something improper to disrupt the normal course of a game is the person who bears the brunt of the responsibility for an error caused by that action. Therefore, they should not benefit from it. All of the above factors will be carefully weighed in cases where the rules cannot be mechanically applied to a situation. The main purpose of rules is to provide a framework for sensible and fair decisions. Poker Room Management's decisions are final. Should a patron wish to dispute that decision, they may file a formal dispute with the Seminole Tribal Gaming Commission pursuant to the Tribe's Gaming Code.

Section A – General Poker Rules

1. THE BUY-IN

a. Rules concerning the buy-in apply only to a player's initial buy, or re-buy, after going all-in and losing the pot. A player with chips may add additional chips to their stack as they wish when not involved in a pot (as long as adding additional chips to their stack does not interfere with the buy-in rules of that game. i.e. no-limit hold 'em).

b. The house will set a minimum buy-in for each game. All buy-ins and re-buys must be for at least that amount. No short buys are permitted. A new player to a table must comply with the buy-in requirement for that game, unless the house has transferred them from a similar game, which has broken down, had the limit changed, has established a must move game, or some related reason.

c. A return to the same table after an absence of less than one hour is still considered part of the same playing session. A player must buy-in for at least the amount that they cashed out. If they cashed out for less than a minimum buy-in, they must return with at least a minimum buy-in.

d. Cash does not play in a pot.

2. TABLE STAKES

All games shall be played according to table stakes rules as follows:

a. Only chips on the table at the start of a hand shall be in play for that pot. Players at the table with chips in transit before the start of the hand have the option to "play behind." Playing behind allows players to participate in the hand so long as they immediately repay all wagers made once their chips are delivered. Players who are playing "behind" will have a "Playing Behind" button placed in front of them.

b. Concealed chips, such as under a phone, do not play.

c. A player with chips may add additional chips to their stack between deals in accordance with the type of game played. A player who goes broke may add chips between deals provided that they comply with the minimum buy-in requirement.

Attention:

d. Chips on the table may be used to pay for incidental items between hands (cigarettes, beverages, food, etc.).

e. A player may not remove any chips from play until they quit the game.

f. The house is not responsible for anything left on the table by an absent player, as stated in #38-HOUSE RIGHTS. If the player wishes to remove chips in play and still be allowed to return to the table, they must get a Poker Supervisor to verify the sum removed so the proper amount may be restored upon their return. When the player returns, they must immediately restore the correct value of chips in order to receive a hand.

g. Any player has the right to an un-impeded view of another player's chips upon request.

3. CHANGES DURING A HAND

The conditions of a game that are in effect at the beginning of a deal may not be changed during that deal. An example would be a player changing seats during a deal and altering his position relative to another player with a live hand.

4. DIRECTION OF PLAY

Play must always proceed clockwise, with each player's turn to act, following the player on their right.

5. HAND PROTECTION

Players are responsible for taking reasonable means to protect their interest in the game. A player who fails to take reasonable means to protect their hand, may have no re-dress if the hand becomes fouled by contact with muck or accidentally taken in by the dealer. The muck is defined as discards, face up community cards are not part of the muck.

a. Contact of an unprotected hand with a discarded card may make the hand dead if there is any doubt by the dealer about which cards belong in the hand.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

b. If an unprotected hand has come into contact with muck, the floor person should make every effort to reconstruct the hand and have the deal played to its conclusion.

   A protected hand may not be ruled dead by accidental contact with the muck unless it is impossible to reconstruct. A "protected hand" means the player is holding on to it or has one or more chips or a heavy object (such as a card protector) set on top of it. Stud hole cards are considered protected. A player who has a protected hand mucked by the dealer or fouled by discards, may be entitled to a refund from the pot.

c. A player who leaves the table without comment and has an unprotected hand is assumed to be folding. A player who is not at the table for the showdown and has left their hand unprotected is assumed to have no interest in the pot, and the hand may be mucked.

6. PROPER CARD

a. Each card dealt must be the top card of the deck. After the initial card of a round has been dealt to a player, each player must receive their card directly after the person on their immediate right. The order of future ownership of cards that will be in play is not to be disturbed at any time during the round unless an irregularity of sufficient magnitude has taken place, requiring a round of cards to be buried, the deck remade or a hole card has been dealt to the wrong player in such a manner that the mistake cannot be rectified by switching the card.

b. A player receiving a final down card in a Stud game that should have been dealt to another player must keep it, unless it is not possible that they know its rank or suit and the card has not become intermingled with their other down cards. A player who was skipped their proper down card in such a manner that they can no longer receive it should get a card after all other players receive a card that round. Procedure for an improperly faced card is discussed in #27 – BOXED CARD

These rules make an effort to preserve the order of the cards so a player will receive the same card that they would have received if there had been no irregularity in procedure. If for some reason it becomes impractical for the player to receive the same card, the player has not been hurt. The substitution of a randomly selected card neither helps nor hurts the player's chances of winning the pot.

7. BOTTOM CARD OF DECK

The bottom card of the deck may be dealt, if necessary.

8. EXPOSED CARDS

A down card dealt face up, a down card that flashes as it is dealt so that another player might know its identity, or a down card dealt off the table is considered to be an exposed card. A card exposed by the player is not considered to be an exposed card. When there is a question of whether a card that "caught some air" actually flashed, the player is entitled to get it replaced if the player has not looked at the card. It is proper for the player to ask for a replacement before looking at the card. If the player looks at the card before asking to get it replaced, the player opens themself to the charge that the player is asking to get the card replaced because they didn't like it. The decision whether to allow the looked-at card to be replaced will depend on a number of factors and will be made by the house.

An exposed down card is either required to be replaced or the player is required to keep it, according to the rules for each particular form of poker. The player never has an option of whether to accept or reject a card.

The rules regarding exposed cards dealt to players in each form of poker (unless the situation requires a misdeal), are listed as follows:

A. SEVEN-CARD STUD

At seven-card high, if one of a player's initial hole cards is exposed, the player shall use it for their up card and receive their third card facedown to be a hole card. At seven-card lo-ball ("Razz") and seven-card high-low split, if one of a player's cards is exposed, it is a misdeal.

If the final card dealt to a player is exposed, the following rules apply:

a. A face up final card is always treated as if it were a down card in determining who initiates the betting action on the final round.

b. If the first player received the card face up, it will be treated as a premature card. The stub will be re-made and all players will receive a card face down.

c. If a player, other than the first player, is dealt an exposed card, the remaining cards shall be dealt facedown. The player with the exposed card has the option of declaring themself all-in before the betting round begins. If they declare this, the betting proceeds normally among the other players. If they do not declare themself all-in, they are subject to all bets and raises on that round.

d. An all-in player should receive their final card face down. However, if it is exposed, they must take it. The remaining players still receive their final cards face down.

B. FLOP GAMES (HOLD 'EM AND OMAHA)

The replacement of an exposed card must be done in the following manner:

a. The dealer continues to deal each player their rightful card.

b. After each player has received all of their cards, the exposed card is replaced by the top card of the deck (which was due to be the burn card).

c. The dealer shows the exposed or flashed card to all the players and then puts it face down on top of the deck to be used as the new burn card.

d. In flop games, an exposed card on the button shall be replaced by the next card. The exposed card shall become the burn card.

C. DRAW

The following rules govern exposed cards before the draw in each form of draw poker:

a. At High, the card must be kept;

b. In Lo-Ball draw, any card that may make the player the best possible hand must be kept. Any other card must be replaced.

9. SUBSTANTIAL ACTION

Substantial Action is either A) Any two actions in turn, at least one of which puts chips into the pot (i.e. any two actions, except two checks or two folds) or B) any combination of three actions in turn (check, bet, raise, call, fold). Posted blinds and straddles do not count towards substantial action. Substantial action can only occur when the dealer is no longer in the act of dealing cards. Dealer actions may be counted as actions. Condoning the action (tapping the table) may be considered action. Dealing the burn card off the deck may also be an action.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

10. MISDEALS

A misdeal shall cause all the cards to be returned to the dealer for a re-deal. A misdeal may not be called once substantial action has taken place on a deal. A player who discovers that they have too many cards after action has begun has a dead hand.

The following actions shall cause a misdeal to be declared if there has not been substantial action:

a. Failure to shuffle and cut the deck before dealing.

b. Dealing to the wrong player first.

c. Failure at some point to deal each player only the proper card (except that a player whose card flashes may receive the burn card in its place). "Proper card" means the card a player is due to get if the order of cards and players receiving them is not disturbed. After the first player gets the top card of the deck, each player receives their card for that round directly after the player on their immediate right.

d. In a game using an ante, if a player who has anted is dealt out, it shall be declared a misdeal so long as no player has yet been dealt all the cards for a starting hand. If the error is not discovered until one or more players have been dealt all cards, the player dealt out, shall receive the ante back, and the hand is played.

e. Dealing too few cards to a player, except when that player is due to get the top card of the deck.

f. Dealing too many cards to a player, except when the last card dealt was scheduled to be the burn card and can be returned to the deck.

g. The exposure of two or more cards that need to be replaced.

h. In Seven-Card Stud Lo or High-Lo Split, if a player has either hole card exposed on their initial hand.

i. The initial dealing of a down card to the wrong player, if there is a chance that player looked at it.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

j. The presence of more than one boxed (improperly faced) card.

k. The discovery of a joker (improperly) in the deck.

l. The discovery of one or more cards missing from the deck.

m. The discovery that the deck is defective, as defined in #29-FOULED DECK.

n. If the first card is exposed on either blind, it is a misdeal.

In any game played with an ante, if the pot is found to be short one or more antes, it is not a misdeal. The offender(s) shall have a live hand and be obliged to put in the missing ante. If the offender(s) cannot be determined, the deal is played out with a short pot.

The dealing in of an absent player is not a misdeal. If they are not back by the time it is their turn to act, the hand is dead.

The dealing in of a player or seat that is ineligible to receive a hand is not a misdeal. The dealer continues to deal a complete hand in that spot, and then the ineligible hand is dead.

11. MINIMUM BET

A player may bet a smaller amount on a betting round than was a bet on a previous round. However, neither the minimum bet nor the maximum bet ever decreases on a later betting round. Therefore, at Flop or Draw, the minimum bet is never less than the minimum bring-in for that game, unless a player is going all-in. At Stud, the minimum bet is never less that the initial forced bet unless a player is going all-in.

12. ALL-IN BET

A player is never obliged to drop out of contention because an opponent has bet more than the player has in play. A player confronted by a bet larger than his/her stack may call with the amount of chips in front of them. The excess part of the bet is either returned to the player or used to form a side pot with another player or players who matched the amount called. There is no limitation on the number of side pots. A player who has put all funds in play into the pot is said to be “all-in”. The dealer should announce when a player has made an all-in bet. Players going all-in will have an all-in

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited button placed in front of them by the dealer. Players that call an all-in bet will have a call button placed in front of them by the dealer.

If the player declares all-in with playable chips remaining, those chips are in play.

A player who goes all-in and loses must re-buy to receive a hand on subsequent deals, even though they may still have some odd chips that were not played when they went all-in.

If the player declares all-in with playable chips remaining, the dealer should require that the chips be played.
A player may raise all-in even though the amount is too small to qualify for a full-size raise, according to the betting rules of the game, provided they would normally be entitled to raise in that particular situation. In No Limit and Pot Limit, all-in bets of less than a full raise will be considered as a call, plus extra. The extra would be added to the next legal raise should a player want to raise the minimum. Example: Player A bets $100, Player B goes all-in for $155, Player C may raise to $255.

When the action falls upon a player who is all-in, it passes clockwise to the next active player.

In Limit Poker, an all-in bet of less than half the minimum bet (as determined in #25-MINIMUM BET) does not re-open the betting.

In Pot Limit and No Limit, an all-in bet of less than the full amount of the minimum bet does not re-open the betting. . The question of when the betting is re-opened is discussed thoroughly in the next section #13-RAISES.

A player going all-in may be prohibited from playing certain low-denomination chips.

13. RAISES
This section determines which wagers may be raised by a player in for all previous bets. Two motion raises are not acceptable. A player who announces raise and places any amount forward that is less than a full raise will be restricted to a minimum raise.

Any player may raise the pot on their turn unless:

a. The previous wager is below the minimum size necessary to qualify for re-opening the betting to them.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

b. The betting has been "capped" because the maximum number of raises on a betting round has been reached. Limit poker places a restriction in multi-handed pots on the number of raises that can take place on a betting round. Only 1 bet and 4 raises per betting round is allowed.

c. The minimum size to re-open the betting at each form of poker is as follows:

1. Limit poker—a wager must be at least half a "full bet". To be considered a "full bet", a wager must fulfill both of these conditions:

    a. Be at least the size of the minimum bet as defined in #25-MINIMUM BET.

    b. If the limit is fixed, a full bet is a bet of that limit. A player may not bet or raise less than the amount of a full bet unless:

        i. They are making the initial forced bet.

        ii. They are going all-in.

2. At limit poker, a player facing a wager of less than half a full bet may:

    a. Fold

    b. Call

    c. Raise the wager to the amount of a full bet. This is called "completing the bet" or "completing the raise". The player is not permitted to both complete and raise a wager.

At spread-limit poker, an all-in bet of less than half the minimum bet (as defined in #23-MINIMUM BETTING UNIT) does not re-open the betting to a player who checked on that round or count as a bet for the purposes of the bet-and-raise limitation.

At Stud and spread-limit, a bring-in of greater than the minimum requirement is not considered a raise.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

When the maximum number of raises has been reached in a multi-handed pot at limit poker or a specific ceiling figure has been reached, the betting is said to be "capped". Once the betting on a round has been "capped", no wager of any kind that increases the total bet will be allowed. Therefore, a player cannot increase the total bet by going all-in after the betting has been capped. The betting cannot become uncapped by a player dropping out of a multi-handed pot and creating a heads-up situation (this protects a player from thinking their raise has capped the betting and finding themselves unexpectedly exposed to a re-raise). A player is not considered to be all-in in turn, even though they may be seen not to have enough chips to cover more than a small portion of a raise behind them.

14. ACTION OUT OF TURN

A player has the right to act on their hand and an obligation to notify the other players that they have not yet acted when the betting action bypasses them. Therefore, the following rules apply when the betting action bypasses a player who has not yet acted:

a. If substantial action takes place behind a player whose turn has come to act and has not yet acted, the actions stand. The player must check if there has not been a bet placed on that player and may only call or fold if there was a bet on them.
b. If substantial action has taken place after a player who has not yet acted, and the dealer deals any cards for the next round, the player who has not called all bets has a dead hand. This rule may not be used to call a hand dead when the player obviously intended to call all bets, but unintentionally put in less than the required amount of money. In such a case, the floorperson should rule that the player must make up the amount short and have a live hand.

c. An action out of turn may seriously disrupt the normal course of the betting. Therefore, the following rules will be used to reduce the harm done to non-offending players if substantial action has not taken place:

Action out of turn will be binding if the action to that player has not changed. A check, call or fold does not change action. If action changes, the out of turn bet is not binding. The out of turn player has all options, including calling, raising, or folding. An out of turn fold is binding.

Making a bet out of position prior to cards being dealt is not allowed and considered a form of out of turn action. Dealers will politely push back the bet and ask the player to wait until action is on them.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

15. BURN CARDS

The dealer shall burn a card (place it face down on the table) before dealing any round of cards after the players have received their starting hands.

Burn cards shall be kept separate from the muck throughout the hand until the pot has been awarded. If there is any question of whether the dealer burned a card properly, they should remain until the situation has been resolved to everyone's satisfaction.

In Hold 'em and Omaha, if the deck has to be reshuffled (because the dealer dealt prematurely, dropped the deck or some other procedural irregularity), the burn cards should not be used in the new deck. The dealer is not required to burn a new card before dealing from the new deck.

In Stud, the burn cards are used with the un-dealt cards to form a new deck when the dealer does not have enough legal cards (cards that may come into play, which excludes the bottom card of the deck) to finish the last round.

If the dealer fails to burn a card when required, burns two cards by having them stick together or burns twice on a round and substantial action has not taken place, each card should be moved to its proper spot. One card must be burned, so the correct layout has been re-established. If the proper order of cards cannot be identified, the burn cards will be kept as is.

If substantial action has taken place before attention is called to the error, all cards will be played as dealt. If the error takes place at Draw Poker or a round of down cards at Stud Poker, the cards will have to be played as dealt if any player has had an opportunity to see their card or has inter-mingled it with their other cards.

16. PREMATURE DEALING

A player is not allowed to put chips into the pot, knowing any of the cards that are to be dealt for the next round, except for the final down card in Stud, where the card must be kept. A player is never allowed to control whether an up card is to remain as dealt or the deck re-shuffled. The following rules apply when a card has been dealt face up before all the players have acted on their hands:

a. Any card dealt before everyone has acted may not be used.

b. If there has been a bet and the dealer deals as the last player is in process of folding, the card stays in play.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

c. The discovery that a wager, represented to be a call and accepted as such by the dealer is actually slightly short, shall not invalidate the dealing of a new card.
d. The player is required to make the bet correct.

e. A player who has not called a bet and allows the dealer to deal a new round of cards without comment, has a dead hand once action has been taken on the new betting round and the new round of cards must stay. The player does not have a dead hand if they have indicated the intention of being in for all bets, but has mistakenly failed to put the correct amount in the pot. The player simply makes the bet correct.

Correcting Prematurely Dealt Cards in Board Games

Board and burn cards are sometimes dealt prematurely, before action on the preceding round is finished. The general procedures for these situations are:

a. Premature flop, leave the flop burn card as the burn. Return the premature board cards to the deck stub and reshuffle the entire stub. Re-deal the flop (without another burn) from the newly shuffled stub.
b. A premature turn card is placed back into the remaining stub, and the premature turn burn card is left as the turn burn. Once action is completed, reshuffle the stub and deal the turn without a new burn card.
c. A premature river card is placed back into the remaining stub, and the premature river burn card is left as the river burn. Once action on the turn is completed, reshuffle the stub and deal the river without a new burn card.

Correcting Four-Card Flops

If the flop has more than three cards, the Poker Floor Supervisor shall be called. The Dealer will then scramble the four cards and the Poker Floor Supervisor will select a card which will become an exposed burn card. This method is used unless there has been substantial action based on an improper cards, in which case, the card the Players based their action on will stand, and the Dealer on subsequent streets shall treat the two stuck together cards as a single card.

17. WORDS AND GESTURES

A player facing a bet who announces a fold has a dead hand. At Stud, the picking up of all one's up cards off the table when facing a bet may be construed as a fold. However, the floor person may elect to let the player have a live hand if they feel the player was unfamiliar with the rule and no damage was done by the act.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

At Poker Floor Supervisor's discretion, a player facing a bet who discards their hand may reclaim it.

A player who discards the hand at the showdown when not facing a bet may reclaim the hand provided it is not irretrievable.

In Stud, any time before the showdown, a player who turns all of their up cards facedown has indicated a fold. The dealer shall kill this hand, even if the player is in for all bets up to that time. This does not apply to a player who has bet and mistakenly believes everyone has folded.

A statement of "fold", "check", "raise" or a specific size bet is binding on an active player if it is the player's first action

A player who announces a bet or raise of a certain size but puts a different number of chips in the pot should have his bet corrected to the stated size.

The substitution of an irregular statement or gesture for "fold", "check", "call" or "raise" may result in the player being forced to take an action they did not intend. The player must accept any consequences of non-standard betting.

Cards placed face up on the table at any time are not folded.

If a player is obligated to put money into the pot, by a bet, call or raise, the fact that they have thrown away the hand does not relieve them of that obligation.

18. UNCALLED BET

A player who makes a bet that nobody calls wins the pot. A player who makes a bet and decides, incorrectly, that they have no live hands against them and throws the hand into the muck, loses the pot, unless the hand is declared retrievable by the floor person. Every effort should be made to rule in the direction of playing out the pot. If a player has been induced to discard the hand by the dealer, who has falsely indicated the player has made a bet and won the pot, but someone still has a live hand, the floor person will use the following rules in making a decision:

a. If at all possible, the hand should be retrieved, and the pot played out.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

b. If the hand is irretrievable, the floor person must make a decision based on the strength of the remaining hand, whether it was out in the open or concealed and whether the player had an opportunity to speak up to prevent the other player from thinking they won the pot.

c. A player misled by a dealer or player at the table may receive their last bet back.

19. INSUFFICIENT CALL

A player, who puts chips into a pot with the apparent intention of calling a bet and is found to have put in an insufficient amount, may not withdraw the chips. The player must put in sufficient additional chips to call, even if the opponent has shown their hand. This rule is not to apply when someone has obviously misunderstood the amount of the wager to a significant degree.

A player who shows that they are unaware of a raise by calling only the amount of the bet before that raise may call the raise or forfeit the chips in play. At Poker Floor Supervisor's discretion, the amount wagered may be returned to the player.

An insufficient call may not be changed to a raise.

20. UNCLEAR BET

A player has the right to assemble chips in front of them before acting. A player has made a bet if that player pushes assembled chips forward and releases them. If a betting line is in use, chips pushed past the line are considered a wager. In unclear situations, a player who lets the dealer pull the chips into the pot without making an immediate objection has made a wager.

21. INSUFFICIENT RAISE

A wager without comment that is larger than necessary to call a bet, but less than necessary to raise, may be clarified by that player as either a call or raise if the next player has not acted. If the next player has acted, the wager is treated as the action it most closely resembles. Therefore, it is a call if the excess amount is less than half of the amount needed to raise and considered a raise if it is more than half the amount needed to raise. If the amount is exactly half the amount needed to raise, it is considered a call if the excess amount is only one chip, but a raise if it is two or more chips. If the wager is ruled a raise, the player must add the amount needed to bring the wager to the size of a full raise. (The floor person may depart from this formula in making a ruling if it appears obvious that the player unintentionally used the wrong denomination of chips.)

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

In a multi-handed pot, any player who makes a wager the size of a raise but is under the faulty impression that they are calling, may reduce the bet to a call, at the Poker Floor Supervisor's discretion, if nobody has yet acted behind them. If there is action behind the player, or if the player may have gained useful information about the nature of the hand behind them, the bet must stand. If the player is heads-up, the bet must stand if requested by the opponent. An example of the use of this rule would be where the big blind does not realize they are already in and puts more money into the pot.

22. STRING BET

A player is not allowed to make a bet, gauge an opponent's reaction and then increase the amount of the bet. A player must put all chips forward at one time when making a raise, unless an amount has been stated before returning to their stack.

A player who puts the amount of a call into the pot without indicating a raise may not go back to their stack for more chips and raise the pot.

23. OVERSIZE CHIP BET

A wager accompanied by the announcement of "raise" indicates that the whole amount plays, or as much as legally possible. If an announcement is not made, the oversized chip is considered a call. When a player is required to make the opening forced bet, it is assumed that they are betting the minimum, unless that player makes a statement to the contrary. When initiating a bet, the whole amount of the chip will play unless stated otherwise.

24. CHECK-AND-RAISE

Check-and-raise is permitted in all games, unless a specific notice to the contrary is posted for a particular game.

25. MINIMUM BETTING UNIT

The minimum betting unit is the smallest denomination of chip that will be permitted in play for a game, except for use in antes and blinds. This also includes all-in situations. Every game will have a minimum betting unit set for it by the house.

26. FOUL HAND

A foul hand is a dead hand and cannot win any part of the pot. A hand is foul if it comes into contact with the muck in such a manner as to violate Rule #5-HAND PROTECTION, or has too many cards for that point in the game.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

A player who discovers their hand is fouled cannot recover any chips they have put into the pot (unless a misdeal can be called in accordance with #10-MISDEALS because substantial action has not yet taken place) except as follows:

If a player makes a bet or raise and the next player has not yet acted or indicated the intention of calling or raising, the player may call attention to the fact that their hand is fouled and be returned the uncalled amount.

A player may not deliberately foul their hand to recover a bet, nor make an attempt to win the pot by betting or raising once the player has discovered that the hand is fouled. If the floor person decides the player has violated either of these provisions, the floor person may rule that the chips must stay in the pot. If the player with the foul hand wins the pot and this is discovered before the pot is awarded, the situation is similar to a player who bets knowing the deck is defective, as covered in #29-FOULED DECK.

A player who bets and wins a pot believing they have a complete hand, when actually, one or more of the player's cards have been inadvertently scooped into the muck by the dealer, gets to keep the pot. The floor person will have to rule whether the player bet with or without the knowledge that they did not have a hand.

A player, who has been dealt two up cards that have stuck together, must call attention to this before they act on the hand. The player may then retain the proper card and have a live hand.

In all other cases, the player's hand is dead because the player has too many cards. If a floor person is convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that no impropriety by that player exists, the player's chips will be refunded from the pot.

27. BOXED CARD

A boxed card (improperly faced card) is treated as a scrap of paper. It is replaced by the card immediately beneath it. If this is not possible because the card below it was dealt as a hole card to the next player, it is replaced at the end of the round.

28. IMPROPER JOKER

A joker improperly in the game shall constitute a misdeal if substantial action has not occurred. Once substantial action takes place, a player with the joker is entitled to have it replaced. On a round of up cards, the joker is replaced by the top card of the deck at the end of the round. If discovered during a betting round, it is replaced by the top card of the deck, and the dealer still burns a card before dealing the next round.

29. FOULED DECK

A fouled deck is one that has two identical cards (including two jokers when one is in use) or any cards of a different-colored back. Missing, mutilated or marked cards, or one or more jokers when none are in use, do not constitute a fouled deck for the purposes of this rule.

If the deck is found to be foul, all chips in the pot shall be returned to the players in the amount each contributed. A player who realizes the deck is defective should call attention to the fact immediately. A player who has the opportunity to know the deck is foul and attempts to win the pot by betting or raising shall have any chips used for this purpose returned and shall be removed from the game.

A player who has already been awarded a pot and taken it in is entitled to keep it, even if the deck is subsequently found to be foul unbeknownst to the winning player, provided that deal is over before the correctness of the deck is challenged. The deal is considered to have ended when all cards are facedown and all hands are intermingled into the discard pile.

30. DROPPED DECK

A deck that is dropped by the dealer before a deal is over, such as the dealer thinking no more cards are to be dealt, shall have the top of the deck used if it can properly be determined. The floor person should see that the cards in question are the correct deck stub. If the deck is in doubt or a card might have flashed, the floor person shall have the dealer take the stub and reshuffle it. Cards known to be mucked may not be reshuffled into the deck. The dealer must cut the deck before dealing.

31. SHOWDOWN

If two or more players are still in contention for the pot after all the cards have been dealt and the betting is over, the players show their cards to determine who has the best hand and wins the pot. A player at the showdown may discard a hand without showing it. When all opponents' cards have been mucked without being revealed, the last live hand wins. The last live hand is not required to expose their cards when all other players have mucked.

Players do not have the right to examine the contents of a discarded hand at the showdown. They may only request to see a players hand in the case of believed collusion. To see a player's hand, the dealer will call the Poker Floor Supervisor who will then determine if the hand will be shown. Should the player with the winning hand request to see another player's hand, the hand becomes live and may be awarded the pot if it is the best hand. A player using this right as a method of irritation should be warned to stop.

The following rules govern who gets the pot at the showdown:

a. A hand with too many cards for that form of poker is dead. A dead hand cannot win any part of the pot.

b. A hand with too few cards at the showdown may be ruled live. The player must still have one or more individual cards. It is improper for a player to discard any of their cards, even though they are not needed for a 5-card poker hand. A player who breaks this rule is subject to having their hand ruled dead if the floor person feels the action was a deliberate violation.

c. A hand is ranked according to the cards actually in it, not by the player's opinion of their holding. Therefore, the under calling of a hand's rank or a verbal concession is not binding. "The cards speak for themselves".

d. A hand that has been placed face up on the table and properly identified is a live hand. The player who owns it is entitled to the pot, even if the dealer subsequently mucks the hand in error. "Properly identified" means accurately identified to the satisfaction of the floorperson. Examples would be by the dealer and the player possessing the hand or by significant majority of players observing the hand. In all situations, a floorperson has discretion in deciding if any equity situation exists.

e. Although it is prohibited to deliberately miscall the value of a hand, it is quite possible to do so as an honest mistake. Therefore, a player is responsible for confirming that a hand actually reads as stated. To give a misled player some protection, the floor person has the power to reconstruct and rule live, a hand thrown away as a result of an inaccurate identification of an opposing hand by the opponent or by the dealer, even if it has touched the muck. However, if the mucked hand can no longer be satisfactorily reconstructed and has never been properly identified, the hand is dead. The player loses any claim to the pot. The house retains the right to make an equitable decision when the mucked hand was obviously the best hand.

f. A hand may be retrieved if it has not been placed irretrievably in the muck.

Attention:

g. The proper dealer procedure for a hand being shown down is to call attention to any card(s) that are still face down, so that the player may turn them up if they wish. However, the turning up of one or more facedown cards by the dealer or another player in a hand that is partially face up cannot deprive a player with the best hand from winning the pot.

h. No player or dealer may showdown a hand for an absent player. Management may allow the owner of a live hand who is away from the table the opportunity to showdown the hand in an emergency situation. Otherwise, the hand should be mucked immediately.

i. A hand discarded face up is still a live hand, even though it has touched other cards, provided it is clearly identifiable.

j. A hand that is put into the muck when a player has left the table at the showdown, implying a concession of the pot, is a dead hand. The house is not obligated to restrain a player who bolts from the table in belief that they have lost the pot.

k. A player, who shows down the best hand, cannot be deprived of the pot because the dealer mucked it in error.

l. Any player or floor person, who sees an error about to be made in awarding a pot, has an ethical obligation to speak up.

m. The responsibility for properly identifying a hand at the showdown is shared by the dealer, the player who owns the hand and to some extent, the other players in the game.

n. The dealer does not have the obligation to read a hand that has been thrown away facedown, even if that hand had been face up at one time. A discarded hand that has been momentarily shown, but not properly identified, should be mucked by the dealer, unless the hand had been discarded because another hand was improperly identified.

o. A pot should only be awarded by the dealer; no player may reach into the pot.

p. A player, who wishes to contest the ownership of a pot, must do so before the completion of the next hand. Unusual circumstances should be brought to the attention of Poker Room Management in a timely manner and will be evaluated in the best interest of the game.

q. The floor person has the authority to calculate the size of an incorrectly awarded pot and remove the proper amount of money from a player's stack, provided that attention was called to the error before the completion of the next hand.

32. ORDER OF SHOWDOWN

Side pot winners should be determined before the main pot. It helps prevent a player from discarding the hand because another player, only in for the main pot, has them beaten. It is the player's responsibility to know there's a main pot to be awarded. Hands thrown in face down should be mucked immediately. At showdown, dealers should announce "All-in players hold your hands" to avoid confusion.

The following rules are for players who refuse to showdown their hands:

a. The player who last "showed strength" in the final round of betting by a bet or raise shall show their hand first.

b. If the last round of betting is checked down, the first player clockwise from the button shall show first in a game using blinds.

c. In Seven Card Stud and Razz, the last aggressor will show down first. If the final round is checked, the high hand on board will show first in Stud and the low hand will show first in Razz.

33. RANKING OF SUITS

Suits do not count in the ranking of hands at the showdown. Suit ranking can determine the lowest card for a forced bet; decide who gets an odd chip in a split pot (Stud games only), assigning seats to players and the like. A joker is treated as a blank piece of paper when dealing for a high card. This does not apply in Short Deck games.

34. DEALS AND INSURANCE

Pot-splitting is not allowed.

35. RUNNING IT TWICE

The players are allowed to deal (run them) twice when someone is all-in. Running twice means the pot is divided in two, with each pot being dealt for separately. The following guidelines apply for running the cards twice:

a. All parties involved must agree.

b. One or more of the players must be all in. No further action should be possible on subsequent streets

c. The players must notify the dealer of the request to run it twice before the remaining cards have been dealt.

d. A run it twice button will be placed on the table.

e. In games played with 5 or more cards, players may only run the turn and river twice.

f. Side pots may be run twice separately from the main pot. Any player who only wants to run it once, is eligible for the top board only.

g. If any pot is to be awarded for the top board only, that pot cannot use two boards, even if a player, electing to run it once, decides to muck his cards.

h. In Pot-Raked games, the house will charge an additional rake equal to the amount taken prior to running it twice.

After the dealer verifies the players' request to run it twice, the cards are dealt as follows:

a. The remaining community cards are dealt to the board, burning a card before each up card.

b. The first set of community cards dealt are slid forward and left on the table.

c. The dealer then deals another set of community cards including either the flop, the turn or the river.

d. Each player shall form a hand from the community cards, and the winner of the pot shall be the player with the highest ranking hand formed using the first set of community cards shall receive half of the pot; and the player with the highest ranking hand formed using the second set of community cards shall receive half of the pot.

Attention:

36. THE ROCK

On games offering "The Rock" after the first pot is awarded, the winner must set out an amount as an automatic straddle before the next hand. A rock button may be used. In some instances, the required amount of chips will be rubber-banded together to form a "rock," which is placed out by the winner as a straddle, with the "rock" always kept in the pot. When the pot is pushed, so is the "rock" and the winner automatically places it back in front of them, putting it back in action before the next hand begins. Action pre-flop starts left of the "rock" and the "rock" can be placed in any position, including the blinds. When playing with a "rock": players may not buy the "rock" from another player. Should the "rock" land on the small or big blind, that player would only need to post the "rock." On games with more than one board, the "rock" goes to the winner of the top board. In the event of a split pot, the "rock" goes to the person in the worst position.

37. ODD CHIP

Pots shall be divided as evenly as chips in play permit. In Hold 'em and Omaha, an odd chip shall be awarded to the player in worst position (clockwise from the button). In stud games, odd chips go to the player with the highest ranking card in their hand. In Omaha High-Low, the high hand will receive the odd chip. In a split high, or split low, the odd chip is awarded clockwise from the button.

38. COLLUSION

Each player in a poker game is required to play only in their own self-interest. Any behavior designed to assist one player over another is prohibited.

The house has the right to prohibit any two or more players from playing at the same table. This should not be taken as an accusation.

Only one player is permitted to a hand and that player must make all decisions without advice from someone else. Conversation in any language between a player with a live hand and another player or a spectator is not permitted.

Any information about a folded hand that is given to one active player in a hand must be shared with all the active players in the pot.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

Anteing, or posting a blind for a player who has just beaten is acceptable, provided nobody complains. Contributions larger than the ante or blind or agreements to compensate another player whenever one wins the pot are not allowed.

39. SHOW ONE SHOW ALL

Any player at the table may request to see the hole cards of a player that has revealed them to another player at the table. If there is a question as to whether one or both cards were shown, both cards will be shown. If the cards were revealed to a player not actively participating in a hand, and a request to see the offender's hand has been made, the cards will be shown at the completion of the hand. If there is any doubt the cards were revealed to an active participant, the cards should be shown immediately so other players have the same knowledge.

40. THE CLOCK

The house has the right to place a maximum time limit for taking action on a hand. The dealer may not put the clock on someone unless the dealer has been requested to do so by a player or a floor person. A player who has the clock put on them and is forewarned of the time limit for taking action, shall be penalized in the following manner for exceeding the specified time limit of twenty-five seconds plus the floor person's five second countdown:

a. If there has not been a bet to the player, the player must check.

b. If there has been a bet to the player, the player's hand is dead.

When a player requests a clock be put on another player, the dealer will call the Floor Person. When the Floor Person arrives, they will ask the dealer "Who is the action on and have they had a reasonable amount of time to act?" If the dealer agrees a reasonable time has passed, the Floor Person will direct the following statement to the player – "You have 30 seconds to act. I will give you a 5 second countdown. If I reach "0," your hand will be dead/checked." A dead hand or a checked hand will be based on A and B above.

41. REVENUE FROM GAMES

Revenue from games will be collected as either A) A percentage of the pot, as stated on game plaques, B) A time charge collected at intervals stated on game plaques.
Once a player has been awarded a pot and taken it in, no additional rake-off should be taken from it.

The Poker Rooms may offer “no flop, no drop” which allows for no rake to be taken when there are no cards dealt, other than the hole cards each player receives.

An uncalled bet is not considered as part of the pot when calculating the amount of rake-off.

The house may use a different form of time collection than those listed above in special situations.

42. HOUSE RIGHTS

A decision of Poker Room Management is final. Should a patron wish to dispute that decision, they may file a formal dispute with the Seminole Tribal Gaming Commission. A player shall have no claim against the house for a faulty decision given in good faith, or an honest error by a dealer or floor person. The house is not responsible for chips left on the table by an absent player. The house has no responsibility for cash left on the table by an absent player, whether verified or not. A player should take their cash and chips with them when leaving the table. The house has the right to request a standard of dress, talk and behavior. The house reserves the right to suspend or waive the use of any rule to accommodate special games or events, such as closed games, private games, reserved games, heads-up matches and private tournaments. This will only be done when the players involved are informed and agree to such changes. This code of rules tries to have the offender be the person who is damaged by the effect of their error and not some innocent player. In situations not specifically discussed in the rules, this principle will be followed by the floor person making a decision. If a decision observing only the letter of the law would clearly be unfair or incorrect, the house has the right to make a decision observing the spirit of the rules, which is the concept of fairness.

Seminole Gaming Poker Rooms function under the above rules and try to protect all players and maintain fairness, integrity and harmony in all games spread.

Section B – Flop Games and Games Using Blinds

Hold 'em is a community card game. After players receive their initial facedown cards, there is a betting round. The dealer burns a card and deals three board cards (called the "flop") and turns them up. There is a betting round and the dealer burns and turns the fourth board card. There is a betting round and the dealer burns and turns a final board card. There is a final betting round followed by showdown.

The number of individual cards dealt each player depends on the form of Hold 'em being played. At Texas Hold 'em, each player receives two cards to start and at the showdown, may play both individual cards and three board cards, one individual card and four board cards or all five board cards, called "playing the board". To play the board, a player must announce they are playing the board prior to mucking both hole cards.

Certain types of Flop Games, particularly Omaha, lend themselves very well to high-low split play. Most split-pot games use a qualifier of eight or better for low, unless specifically stated otherwise. A player may use any two cards from their hand for high and the same or any other combinations of two cards for low.

Games with a house dealer use a flat disk called the dealer-button (or just "button") to indicate the starting point of each hand. The player to the immediate left of the button is first to receive a card. Betting action on the initial round starts by the player on the left of the last player to post a blind bet ("blind"). On subsequent rounds, the first active player clockwise from the button acts first.

1. "BLINDS" FOR ANY TYPE OF HOLD 'EM GAME

a. Blinds are wagers posted before any cards are dealt. These blinds are placed at the first and second positions left of the button or if one blind is used, the first position left of the button.

b. The sizes of the blinds are determined by the limit of the game.

c. High card will determine who gets the button in new games.

2. STRUCTURED BETTING

The large blind will be the amount of the small bet.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

The small blind will be ½ the size of the large blind or as near as possible not to exceed ½.

a. Missing Blind Positions:

   1. If a player misses a blind for any reason, that player must post the blind or blinds after the button has passed or wait until after the button has come back around the table.

   2. If the player missing a blind decides to play after the button passes, the dealer will announce to all players, "There will be two big blinds (or three, etc.)."

b. A new player to the game may not receive a hand in between the small blind and the button or have the privilege of last action. The player must wait for the button to pass them, or buy the button

c. All big blinds are "live", meaning the player has the option of raising the pot when the action reaches that player.

d. A player who posts a regular blind may only put up the amount required by the structure of a particular game; oversize blinds are prohibited.

e. An extra voluntary blind posted is called a "straddle". The rules governing straddle bets are as follows:

   1. Only one straddle is permitted on a deal, unless the floor person specifically permits multiple straddles.

   2. A straddle must be announced or posted prior to the first card being dealt.

   3. A specific size for the straddle is set for each game, which is at least twice the size of the big blind. A straddle of larger size than regulation is not permitted.

   4. Straddles in No Limit/Pot Limit games act like a third blind, making the minimum bring-in the amount of the third blind for that betting round only. The straddler has the option to raise if everyone simply calls.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

5. Straddles in Limit games act like a blind raise without changing the structure for that betting round. The straddler has the option to raise if everyone simply calls. The straddle will not count towards the four-raise maximum.
6. The action before the flop is initiated by the person on the immediate left of the straddle.

7. The button is allowed to straddle. Straddle preference is given to players counter-clockwise starting with the button position.

8. The house has the right to disallow the use of a straddle bet in a game. However, if the dealer breaks the house rule and allows the player to post a straddle and substantial action takes place, the bet must stand and is live.

f. The system of button and blind placement for each type is determined by weighing the unfairness of someone escaping the blind.

The system controlling blind and button placement is described as follows:

The "NO MISSED BLINDS" METHOD: Every player must take all the blinds each round. If a player who had a blind on the previous deal and does not participate in the next one, that player's seat may still be assigned a blind or the button. A blind or button assigned to an empty seat is termed "dead". A dead blind is one not actually posted. A dead button confers the privilege of last-action on the first player counter-clockwise from it, normally the person having last-action the previous deal.

Example:

- Suppose on the first deal, Player A has the button, Player B has the $5 blind and Player C has the $10. If Player C quits the game, here is how the blinds and button would be placed on the following deals:
- On the next deal, Player D (on Player C's left) would take the big blind, the empty seat (Where Player C had been sitting) would be assigned a dead, small blind and Player B assigned the button.
- The following deal would have Player E take the big blind, Player D gets the small blind and the empty chair vacated for Player C would be assigned the button.
- With this method, each player would take all his/her blinds, but Player B would have the privilege of last-action on two consecutive deals.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

g. All blinds will be arranged in clockwise order from the button. The number and placement of blinds will vary from game to game. A blind may be used as "dead money" that is not part of the player's bet in some structures.

h. A player who misses a blind will be given a "missed blind" button. To receive a hand when they return, a player with a missed blind button must do one of the following:

   1. Come in on their big blind.

   2. Make up the blind in appropriate fashion.

      a. A player who makes up their blind is still required to take the blind in normal rotation.

   3. Place a straddle bet if in the proper position.

i. A player who misses all the blinds on a round shall make it up as follows:

   1. In Limit games, the player must post an amount equal to the sum of the blinds. The excess amount over the Big Blind becomes dead money and is put into the center pot by the dealer because it is not part of the bet.

j. New players to the table will not be required to post the blinds.

k. A player transferred by the house from a broken game, from a game where the limit was changed, or from a must move game does not have to post any money before they are scheduled to take the big blind.

l. A player who goes broke and wishes to re-enter the game is not liable for any blinds missed.

m. A player who moves to a new seat and goes past two or more active (present at the table) players clockwise away from the big blinds, must post the amount of the big blind (or wait to take the big blind). This rule prevents a player from continually changing seats to unfairly get several extra hands before taking the blind. One move is permitted.

n. A player who has just taken the blind before the button or just played the button and then immediately moves to a new seat that is either due for the big blind or either of the two seats on the immediate left of the big blind has the option of letting the blinds go by them without penalty. The player has not unfairly received any hands because that player's relative position to the blinds has not improved.

o. A player who takes their big blind and then switches seats before the next hand must make up the small blind. That amount is live.

3. BOMB POT OPTIONS FOR HOLD 'EM AND POT LIMIT OMAHA

a. On games where the 'bomb pot" option is available, players get the same number of hole cards, but the pre-flop betting round is by-passed. Each player agrees to place a predetermined bet amount into the pot before any cards are dealt. After the cards are dealt, the dealer will then put out the flop. Play proceeds as normal from the flop onwards with a round of betting starting to the left of the button.

Section C – Stud

Stud is characterized by a player having individual cards, with one or more of their cards face up. Seven-card stud is the most popular form and the only type discussed in these rules. Seven-Card Stud is played high, low, and high-low split.

To avoid running out of cards on a deal, all Seven-Card Stud games normally will be restricted to a maximum of eight players. To start a deal, each player is dealt two down cards and one up card (called a "door card"). There is a betting round followed by an up card ("fourth- street"), a betting round followed by an up card ("fifth- street"), a betting round followed by an up card ("sixth- street"), a betting round followed by a down card ("seventh- street") and a final betting round followed by a showdown.

1. STUD RULES

a. A player who has anteed but is not actually present at the table when the time comes to act on the hand, loses the ante and has the forced bet put in the pot for them if they have that obligation.

b. A player who has not indicated the desire to be dealt in by posting an ante is ineligible to receive a hand. If such a player is dealt a starting hand, the hand is dead, provided the failure to ante is discovered before the player has acted by putting any chips in the pot. If a player ineligible for a hand by failure to ante is dealt an up card that obligates that player to make a forced bet, the player who has the second-lowest card (second highest at Razz) shall assume that obligation. A misdeal may not be called because an ineligible player is dealt a starting hand. A misdeal occurs when a player who has anted is dealt out, provided attention is called to the error before any player has received all the cards to their starting hand.

c. If a player who is in for all the bets folds, the player's seat receives the card it was due on that round and continues to receive a card on subsequent rounds if nobody bets. The card is dealt facing the same way (up or down) as the cards to the live players on that round. A player who has folded cannot be considered high on board for betting purposes, even though the player's seat has been dealt one or more additional cards that outrank face up cards of the other players. The highest-ranking live hand initiates betting action. The failure of a dealer to deal the dead seat a card when required can be psychologically disturbing, but no player has been hurt, because receiving a random card does not affect a player's chance of winning the pot.

d. If the dealer mistakenly deals a dead seat a card or fails to deal a dead seat a card when required, it should be corrected by having the cards moved to the proper player if there has not been substantial action. Two players acting would constitute substantial action, because the dealer counts as a player. If there has been substantial action or if the error is on a round of down cards that might have been seen, the cards stay and play as dealt. Once the proper order of cards had been broken by the improper dealing out of the dead seat and the error stands, the dead seat should no longer receive a card on subsequent rounds.

e. If the dealer is going to run out of cards before all active players have a complete hand, the following procedure shall be used:

1. The un-dealt cards and burn cards are remade when it is determined that there are not enough cards to finish the deal, not when the dealer actually runs out of legal cards to deal.

2. A new deck made by combining un-dealt cards with burn cards (and buried cards from the remainder of a round where the dealer dealt prematurely, and the cards could not be used) must observe the rules for burning a card before dealing and not dealing the last card of the deck. Therefore, the number of players that can be accommodated by making up a new deck is two less than the number of cards available.

3. If every player can be given a final card in accordance with rules (a) and (b), the dealer mixes the un-dealt cards with the burn cards by scrambling as a shuffling procedure. He then squares up the deck, cuts, burns a card and deals.

4. If the number of players needing a final card is too many to be taken care of by the procedures of rules (a), (b) and (c), this should be foreseen by the dealer before anyone is dealt a final card by examining the stub of the deck. Instead of dealing anyone an individual card, the dealer shall burn a card and deal a community card for all players to use. If the dealer has failed to realize at the start of the round that they do not have enough cards, the dealer should deal all but the last card. The dealer then remakes the deck from the last card and burn cards, burns a card and deals a community card for all players who lack a final card. If only some of the players are sharing a community card, there shall be no betting on the last round.

f. A player who calls when beaten by the opponent's up cards is not entitled to a refund for these reasons:

   1. There is always the chance an opponent whose hole cards do not help their hand will assume by the call that their hand cannot win and will muck the hand without showing it down.

   2. The call could be used as a tool to reveal an opponent's hand.

   3. Information about the player's hand has been made available to all the players by the call. Therefore, it is unfair if the player does not receive the normal compensation for disclosing this information.

g. In all stud games, the dealer should indicate who acts first. In high games, the dealer should call open pairs. The dealer should identify four-straights and four-flushes. In Hi-Lo and High limit stud games, no hands will be called.

Section D - Draw

1. DRAW (Including Lowball)

Each player initially receives five down cards. The action is initiated by the player to the immediate left of the player with the dealer-button, if there are no blinds, and by the player on the immediate left of the big blind if any blinds are used. The first player to make a wager on the initial betting round is called the opener and is said to have "opened the pot". After the initial betting round is over, the players have an opportunity to draw new cards. Players may either keep their original hands (stand pat) or discard as many cards as they choose and get a new card for each one thrown away. This process is called "the draw". There is a final bet and then a showdown. Games are restricted to eight players to make it very unlikely that the dealer will run out of cards and have to reshuffle the deck during a deal. Draw may be played High or Low ("Lowball").

2. FIVE CARD DRAW RULES

Note: Five Card Draw (High or Low) is not a game normally spread in our Poker Room, unless requested by a group of players. This will be at the discretion of the Poker Floor Supervisor in charge and controlled by the following rules:

a. A player may draw as many cards as desired. The player tells the dealer how many cards they want to draw or whether they prefer to "stand pat" by not drawing any cards. The player then discards all cards being replaced before receiving any new cards.

b. A player receives all cards at the same time, unless drawing five. The player may not draw five, consecutive cards from the deck. A player drawing five cards receives four of them at the normal turn and the fifth card after all the other players have drawn. If this player is last to draw, the dealer burns a card before giving them a fifth card.

c. A player may not change the number of cards they draw once the next player has acted or the dealer has actually dealt the cards.

d. Any player, who wishes to know how many cards were drawn by an opponent, may receive this information from the dealer, provided there has not yet been any action after the draw.

This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

e. In games that do not use blinds, action after the draw is initiated by the opener or by the first active player on their left after they have folded. In games that use blinds, action after the draw is initiated by the first, active player, clockwise from the button.

f. If the "Seven Rule" (You may not check a seven or better after the draw.) is in use at Lowball, a violator cannot win any chips bet after the draw. If the player has the best hand, they win the center pot. All chips bet after the draw are refunded. If this player ties for the best hand, the player gets their rightful share of the center pot, but their chips bet after the draw are refunded and all other chips bet after the draw go to the player that tied them. If the player does not have the best hand, no chips are refunded.

Section E – Card Room General Procedures

1. THE LIST

a. Player's names will be called a maximum of three times prior to being erased from the list. Names removed in error may be placed back on the list.

b. When there is a vacant seat that has been declined by everyone on the list, all names will be scratched from the list. A list may not be kept for a game with an open seat.

   1. When a table breaks, each of those players present may draw a card to determine seating order in another game. Absent players, who do not have an absent button, or missed blind button will be drawn a card for by a floor person. A player at the table who does not want to play short-handed is entitled to equality in drawing a card, provided that this player stays at the table (not playing), allowing the game to fill should other players arrive.

   2. The house may require a player making a voluntary table change to comply with the table stakes for that particular game.

c. The house may add an extra seat beyond the norm for a game for special circumstances, such as combining games or serious error involving the player reservation list (floor person discretion).

d. The house does not allow the playing of chips for someone else. The house may provide play over boxes.

e. Players away from the table for an extended period of time may be at risk of having their chips removed from the table.

f. The changing of the limit or type of game may only be done if approved by the floor person. In order to raise the limit of a game in progress, all players must agree. The floor person may vote for an absent player on a conditional acceptance basis. The house retains the right to disallow the raising of the existing limit on any game. The purpose for disallowing a raising of the limit may include preserving a structure that new arrivals can reasonably expect to find in progress, the presence of a list and several other reasons.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

g. The house has the right to control seating in all games. The floor person will be notified if someone wants a seat, regardless of whether there is a list for the game. If there are two or more games with the same structure having open seats, the house picks the game that gets the new player. Nobody may transfer games without house permission. All of this is in the best interest of the players and to maintain a balance of games in progress.

h. New Games will be opened at the discretion of the floor person. Must move games may be implemented on higher limit games as needed.

i. When two games of the same type are combined, the following rules apply:

   1. A player with more than the minimum buy-in who moves to a new table may bring over their entire chip stack. A player with less than the minimum buy-in is not obliged to put any additional money on the table.

   2. In games with blinds, the button moves to the player already at that table who was due for it and blinds are posted accordingly.

   3. If two or more games are combined into one game at a neutral site, it is treated as a new game, except a player with less funds in play than the minimum buy-in is not required to add more money.

j. When there are two or more games of the same type in progress, the house has the right to seat a new player at the table that has the fewest number of players. If there are an equal number of players at each table, then the additional player will be seated at the game which started first. This guideline will be followed until a new shift comes in.

k. A player already on the list has precedence in seat selection when a new game is started, provided that player requested a particular seat from the host prior to the game being called. A player already in a game has precedence in seat selection over a new player. However, if the seat has not been specifically reserved by another player, once the new player has put up a full buy-in, they have the right to remain there, provided that player is not tying up a seat in another game. A player in the game who wants a new seat must take it without playing another hand, if requested to do so by the new player to the table. The new player is entitled to take their seat without excessive waiting. This does not preclude players from making a private agreement to let a player play out their position by playing the button, etc. A picked-up player returning to a game has the normal seat selection rights of a new player.

l. An incoming player who locks up a seat in a game is expected to take that seat and play in the game. That player may not retain the right to that seat if the game is full and another new player is willing and able to play immediately.

m. A player who locks up a seat with a full buy-in in a new game is entitled to a particular seat if they are present to play before ten deals have been played, provided there is no list. If there is a list, the seat must be taken immediately.

n. The house has the right to move a game to a new location in the room.

o. The use of electronic devices including cellular phones is allowed. Players may not talk on their electronic devices while a hand is in play. Players may not actively use (listening to music or watching video is not active use) electronic devices while in possession of a hand. An electronic device policy is available upon request. Reading materials are permitted, so long as it does not interfere with the smooth flow of play in the game. Any music or video being played must not be disruptive or offensive. At the floor person's discretion, a player's permission to watch or listen to disruptive or offensive music or video may be limited or revoked.

p. The casino reserves the right to bar any person from entering the poker room or facility without obligation to give an explanation or show cause.

q. Discourteous behavior toward our dealers and guests will not be tolerated.

r. The Poker Floor should be notified as soon as the dealer leaves the game. If actions by a player cannot wait until the dealer leaves the game, the floor person should be called at once.

2. ETHICS

There are many situations in poker where an action is considered improper, but it would be unwise to assign a specific penalty for an infraction. A specific penalty cannot be used because the severity of the infraction is determined by the intent of the person who commits it. These acts are often done unintentionally or without the realization they are improprieties. The following actions are considered unethical and continued, deliberate and/or flagrant use by a player is grounds for counseling, suspending and/or barring the player from the card room.

a. Holding one's cards in a concealed manner. All cards are to be kept in plain view of the dealer and other players at all times. At Texas Hold 'em and seven-Card Stud, hole cards should remain in contact with the table. At Omaha Hold 'em and Draw, cards should not ever be held below table level or closer to the player than the table edge.

b. Deliberately acting out of turn.

c. Arranging one's chips to conceal the higher denominations.

d. Showing any hole cards before the showdown.

e. Showing or revealing the contents of one's hand when all-in before the betting is over, a player who shows that they have a strong hand for the center pot hinders the chance of a player who bets into a side pot getting called. If the all-in player shows that they have a weak hand, that player increases the chance of another player getting called.

f. In pot-limit, inquiring about a pot size out of turn as if intending to bet, when not intending to do so.

g. Deliberately changing the order of up cards in Seven-Card Stud to deceive an opponent.

h. Throwing chips into the pot so they become intermingled with chips that are already there, making the amount wagered unverifiable. This is called "splashing the pot". Only the amount to be 100% identifiable will be counted toward the wager.

i. Attempting to win the pot by a bet or raise after realizing one's hand or the deck is foul.

j. Playing in a manner to favor one player over another. These are some actions that are improper and a form of collusion. All these rules apply at all times even if only two players are left in the hand.

k. Imparting information in any manner about one's hand to a player in the pot.

l. Advising someone on how to play a hand or suggesting a particular betting action.
m. Giving an opinion on what a player has when they bet.

n. Agreeing to check out a hand when a third person is all-in.

o. Agreeing to save a certain amount of money with another player if either wins the hand when there is potential betting left on a deal for one or both of the parties.

p. Encouraging a person to spread their hand face up on the table and claim the pot at the showdown.

q. Reading a hand for a player who has not yet shown their hand.

r. Commenting on the number of cards a player drew.

s. Having a “soft play” agreement not to bet or raise another player when heads-up.

t. Refunding any money that was won from a player in a pot, such as the last bet.

Section F – Structure of Games

1. BUY-INS

The buy-in for all games may fluctuate and may vary depending on business needs according to The Shift Manager or above. The buy-ins will be posted on the game plaque.

2. MINIMUM BETTING UNITS

A minimum betting unit is established for each game. Chips of a lower denomination than the minimum betting unit may not be wagered once the antes and blinds are posted, even if a player is going all-in, unless they are played in a combination that equals the minimum betting unit. In all games with Limits of $5/$10 and above, any chip smaller than the Small Blind Value does not play. Chips of so low a denomination as are not used in the ante, blind or rake-off structure of that game are not allowed in any combination.

3. "NIT" WAGERS (AKA "STAND UP GAME")

a. Select poker games may have a "NIT" variant offered and it will be posted.

   1. In capped games the amount paid by the last player to win a hand would be posted on the table plaque.

   2. In uncapped games, the amount would be agreed upon by the players before the "nit" game begins.

b. All players will receive a "NIT" button from the dealer. Each player will place the amount to be paid to the other players separate from their current stack.

c. As each player is eliminated, they will give their "NIT" button to the dealer and will place the "NIT" money back into their playing stack.

d. The last player to have a "NIT" button will be declared the "NIT" and pay the other players the agreed upon amount.

3. "Bonus Small Blind (SB)" Wager

a. Select poker games may have a "Bonus SB" variant offered, and it will be posted.
b. At the start of the game, all players will ante a predetermined amount, which will initiate the "Bonus SB" pool.
c. Before each deal, the player on the button will add to the "Bonus SB" pool.
d. The first player in the small blind position to win a hand wins the "Bonus SB" pool.

Section G – High Limit Poker

Hi-Limit Poker (Pot-Limit and No-Limit) is the term we are using to describe a betting limit that is not fixed, but depends on the pot size or is unlimited as in pot-limit and no-limit play. Pot-Limit means the player may not bet more than the size of the pot. The pot size for betting purposes may be slightly larger than the actual amount in the pot because of rounding-off method of computation. No-Limit means the player is allowed to bet all money in play (according to the table stakes rule) at any time. A maximum bet restriction may be placed on a game, such as "pot-limit up to one hundred dollars".

1. HI-LIMIT RULES

a. A player has the right to know approximately how much money an opponent is playing. Therefore, they are entitled to an unimpeded view of an opponent's chips if requested. The dealer is responsible for making sure the amount of chips bet is the amount represented by the bettor. All verbalized bets and raises should be counted by the dealer. Stacks of six or more chips should be broken down and counted.

b. The round-off size of the pot for betting purposes is a number that is divisible by the minimum betting unit. The pot size is rounded off upwards, with any odd chips smaller than the minimum betting unit combined into one additional betting unit, unless the house feels a particular structure is better played with odd chips not counting as part of the pot.

c. Blinds of chips smaller than the minimum betting unit are combined when computing pot size; they are not counted individually as units. All chips from made-up blinds are counted as part of the pot in determining the maximum permissible raise of any player. Raked chips are counted as still in the pot. Time collection chips in the rake slot are part of the pot only if they were taken after the start of play on that deal. Extra chips that are in the pot as a result of the time collection being less than the amount actually put in the pot by the players will be counted in a manner prescribed by the house for each particular game. A frequent method is having the chips not count as part of the pot until after the flop.

d. An over bet of the pot may be called down to proper size until:

1. All players have acted on that round.
2. Two players have called the bet.
3. A player has announced their intention to raise the pot.
4. Two players are heads-up and the second player announces their intention to call the full amount.

The dealer should always call immediate attention to an over bet of the pot and return the excess amount at once.

The calling down of an over bet does not give any player the right to change their action.

e. An under bet of the pot by a player (because they have been given incorrect information by the dealer or they have miscalculated the pot size themselves) who has announced the intention to bet the full size of the pot must stand unless corrected immediately. A player shares the responsibility with the dealer in keeping accurate track of the pot size.

f. The dealer should announce the number of active players when spreading the flop. The dealer should not announce the size of the pot at any time except when specifically requested. The statement “I’m going to raise” is not to be taken as an inquiry about the pot size.

g. When a seat comes open, a player in the game who asked for it may move to that seat. 2

Section H – Ranking of Hands

Poker at our gaming facilities is played with a standard bridge deck of 52 cards. The cards at high poker are ranked Ace, King, Queen, Jack, ten, nine, eight, seven, six, five, four, trey, deuce. An Ace may also be used as a card lower than a deuce in sequence.

A poker hand at the showdown consists of precisely five cards (possibly the best five selected from a greater number by some pre-determined rule) ranked according to the following list from highest to lowest, in the order of their probability of occurrence from least likely to most likely:

a. Royal Flush – An Ace-High straight flush is nicknamed a "Royal Flush"

b. Straight Flush- - five cards of the same suit in sequence.

c. 4 of a Kind- - four cards of the same rank.

d. Full House- - three cards of the same rank and two cards of the same rank.

e. Flush- - five cards of the same suit

f. Straight- - five cards in sequence

g. 3 of a Kind- - three cards of the same rank

h. 2 Pair- - two cards of the same rank and two other cards of the same rank

i. 1 Pair- - two cards of the same rank

This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

j. High Card- - The highest-ranking card in the hand

Some forms of poker, especially Draw, permit the addition of a Joker to the deck. The Joker may be used at high poker, either as an Ace or as any card not already in the player's hand to complete a straight flush, flush or straight. Five Aces becomes the highest-ranking hand. The Joker is used at low poker as a card of the lowest rank not already in the player's hand.

Section I – Etiquette

a. A player who expects to be showing down the winning hand should show it immediately.

b. Waving one's cards up and down at showdown means "I have a very weak hand; show your hand and take the pot" (and should only be done if that is actually the case).

c. When one's opponent waves their cards up and down at showdown, a player who has a reasonable hand should show the hand with the expectation of taking the pot, regardless of who is technically required by the rules to show first.

d. It is considered impolite to ask to see a hand of a player just beaten in a pot or to use the request as a "needle".

e. Although deception is a necessary part of poker, it is not polite to use an excessive amount of time to make a play one knows will be made.

f. Language, dress and behavior should be appropriate.

g. A player going all-in should announce the fact.

h. A raise should be announced.

i. A player should turn all their cards facedown when folding, to assist the dealer in maintaining a comfortably fast pace of play.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

j. Lengthy post-mortems about a hand are unwelcome.

k. Criticism of the way another player has elected to play the hand or the general style of play is impolite and undesirable.

l. A player is entitled to quit the game any time they choose without suffering criticism.

m. Players should speak up and assist the dealer by calling attention to an error in the amount of a bet or improper reading of a hand.

n. It is improper to make an effort to see another's hole cards, such as leaning or ducking the head. One is not obliged to look away if cards are openly exposed to view. It is proper for an opponent to complain when a player is constantly getting the opportunity to see another's hole cards.

o. The dealer is not to be held responsible for anything totally beyond their control, such as the identity of the cards they deal.

p. Discard hands should be released on a low line of flight and a moderate rate of speed. They should be directed toward the muck, not the dealer's hands.

q. Talk or action demeaning to the dealer will not be tolerated. Throwing cards, name-calling and other such uncivilized behavior will be grounds for suspending or barring any player from the card room.

Section J – Tournament Rules

1. TOURNAMENT RULES

The tournament rules listed below will supersede any rules that differ when compared to cash game rules.

A. FLOOR DECISIONS

The best interest of the game and fairness are top priorities in decision-making. Unusual circumstances occasionally dictate that common-sense decisions in the interest of fairness take priority over technical rules. Floor decisions are final. Should a patron wish to dispute that decision, they may file a formal dispute with the Seminole Tribal Gaming Commission.

B. PLAYER RESPONSIBILITIES

Players should verify registration data and seat assignments, verify they're dealt the correct number of cards before Significant Action occurs, protect their hands, make their intentions clear, follow the action, act in turn with proper terminology and gestures, defend their right to act, keep cards visible and chips correctly stacked, remain at the table with a live hand, table all cards properly when competing at showdown, speak up if they see a mistake, play in a timely manner, call for a clock when warranted, transfer tables promptly, follow one player to a hand, know and comply with the rules, practice proper etiquette, inform the house if they see or experience discriminatory or offensive behavior, and generally contribute to an orderly event where all players feel welcome.

C. OFFICIAL TERMINOLOGY AND GESTURES

Official betting terms are simple, unmistakable, time-honored declarations like bet, raise, call, fold, check, all-in, complete, and pot (pot-limit only). Regional terms may also meet this test. Also, players must use gestures with caution when facing action; tapping the table is a check. It is the responsibility of players to make their intentions clear: using non-standard terms or gestures is at player's risk and may result in a ruling other than what the player intended. See also Rules 2 & 42.

D. PLAYER IDENTITY

Players must be clearly identifiable at all times. Tournament staff may request a player to remove any item (sunglasses, hood, or other facial covering) which inhibits their identification or is a distraction to other participants.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

E. ELECTRONIC DEVICES AND COMMUNICATION

Players may not talk on or use an electronic device including a cellphone at the table. Ring tones, music, images, video etc. should be inaudible and non-disturbing to others. Betting apps and charts and other poker strategy tools may not be used by players with live hands. These and other devices, tools, photography, videography, and communication must not create a nuisance, delay the game or create competitive advantage and are subject to house and gaming regulations. Violations of this paragraph are subject to penalties in Rule 71.

F. OFFICAL LANGUAGE

The house will clearly post and announce acceptable language(s) at the table.

2. SEATING, BREAKING & BALANCING TABLES

A. RANDOM CORRECT SEATING

Tournament and satellite seats will be randomly assigned. A player starting in a wrong seat with a correct chip stack will move to the correct seat with their current total chip stack.

B. ALTERNATES, LATE REGISTRATION, RE-ENTRIES

a. Alternates, players registering late, and re-entries will be sold full stacks. They will randomly draw a seat and table by the same process and from the same seat pool then in place for new players and are dealt in except between the small blind and button.

b. In re-entry events, if a player is permitted to forfeit chips and buy a new stack, the forfeited chips will be removed from play.

C. SPECIAL NEEDS

Accommodations for players with special needs will be made when possible.

D. BREAKING TABLES

a. New players entering the tournament and players from broken tables can get any seat including the small or big blind or the button and be dealt in except between the Small Blind, hereby referred to as “SB.” and button.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

b. Players from a broken table will be assigned new tables and seats by a 2-step random process. See Illustration Addendum.

E. BALANCING TABLES AND HALTING PLAY

a. To balance in flop & mixed-games, the player to be big blind next moves to the worst position, including single big blind if available, even if that means the seat is big blind twice. Worst position is never the small blind. In stud-only, players move by position (last seat open at the short table is the seat filled).

b. In mixed games (ex: HORSE), when the game shifts from hold'em to stud, after the last hold'em hand the button moves to the position it would be if the next hand was hold'em and is frozen there during stud. The player moved in stud is the player who would be big blind if the game were hold'em for that hand. Shifting to hold'em the button starts where it was frozen.

c. The table from which a player is moved will be specified by a predetermined procedure.

d. Play will halt on tables 3 or more players short (by elimination) than the table with the most players once the blinds are impacted (See Illustration Addendum). Play halts on other formats (ex: 6-hand and turbos) at TDs discretion. TDs may waive halting play and waiver is not a misdeal. As the event progresses, at TD's discretion tables should be more tightly balanced.

3. POTS / SHOWDOWN

A. DECLARATIONS / CARDS SPEAK AT SHOWDOWN

Cards speak to determine the winner. Verbal declarations of hand value are not binding at showdown but deliberately miscalling a hand may be penalized. Dealers should read and announce hand values at showdown. Any player, in the hand or not, should speak up if they think a mistake is made in reading hands or calculating and awarding the pot.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

B. TABLING CARDS & KILLING WINNING HAND

a. Proper tabling is both 1) turning all cards face up on the table and 2) allowing the dealer and players to read the hand clearly. "All cards" means both hole cards in hold'em, all 4 hole cards in Omaha, all 7 cards in 7-stud, etc.

b. At showdown players must protect their hands while waiting for cards to be read (See also Rule 65). Players who don't fully table all cards, then muck thinking they've won, do so at their own risk. If a hand is not 100% retrievable and identifiable and the TD rules it was not clearly read, the player has no claim to the pot. The TDs decision on whether a hand was sufficiently tabled is final.

c. Dealers cannot kill a properly tabled hand that was obviously the winner.

C. LIVE CARDS AT SHOWDOWN

Discarding non-tabled cards face down does not automatically kill them; players may change their minds and table cards that remain 100% identifiable and retrievable. Cards are killed by the dealer when pushed into the muck or otherwise rendered irretrievable and unidentifiable.

D. SHOWDOWN AND DISCARDING IRREGULARITIES

a. If a player tables one card that would make a winning hand, the dealer should advise the player to table all cards. If the player refuses, the floor should be called.

b. If a player bets then discards thinking they have won (forgetting another player is still in the hand), the dealer should hold the cards and call the floor (a Rule 58 exception). If cards are mucked and not retrievable and identifiable to 100% certainty, the player is out and not entitled to a refund of called bets. If cards are mucked and the player initiated a bet or raise not yet called, the uncalled amount will be returned.

E. FACE UP FOR ALL-INS

All hands will be tabled without delay once a player is all-in and all betting action by all other players in the hand is complete. No player who is either all-in or has called all betting action may muck their hand without tabling. All hands in both the main and side pot(s) must be tabled and are live. See Illustration Addendum.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

F. NON ALL-IN SHOWDOWNS, SHOWDOWN ORDER

a. In a non all-in showdown, if cards are not spontaneously tabled or discarded, the TD may enforce an order of show. The last aggressive player on the final betting round (final street) must table first. If there was no final round bet, the player who would act first in a final betting round must table first (i.e. first seat left of the button in flop games, high hand showing in stud, low hand in razz, etc.).

b. A non all-in showdown is uncontested if all but one player mucks face down without tabling. The last player with live cards wins and is not required to table the cards.

G. ASKING TO SEE A HAND

a. Players not still in possession of cards at showdown, or who have mucked their cards face down without tabling, lose any rights or privileges to ask to see any hand.

b. If there was a river bet, any caller has an inalienable right to have the last aggressor's hand tabled on request ("the hand they paid to see") provided the caller tabled or retains his or her cards. TDs discretion governs all other requests such as to see the hand of another caller, or if there was no river bet. See Illustration Addendum [adopted 2013].

H. PLAYING THE BOARD AT SHOWDOWN

To play the board, players must table all hole cards to get part of the pot (see 3-ARule).

I. AWARDING ODD CHIPS

First, odd chips will be broken into the smallest denomination in play. A) Board games with 2 or more high or low hands: the odd chip goes to the first seat left of the button. B) Stud, razz, and if 2 or more high or low hands in stud/8: the odd chip goes to the high card by suit in the player's 5-card winning hand. C) H/L split: the odd chip in the total pot goes to the high side.

J. SIDE POTS

Each side pot will be split separately.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

K. DISPUTED HANDS AND POTS

The reading of a tabled hand may be disputed until the next hand begins (see Rule 23). Accounting errors in calculating and awarding the pot may be disputed until substantial action occurs on the next hand. If a hand finishes during a break, the right to any dispute ends 1 minute after the pot is awarded.

4. GENERAL PROCEDURES

A. NEW HAND & NEW LIMITS

A new level starts on announcement by the floor person or audio signal by the clocking system. The new level applies to the next hand. Hands begin on the first riffle, push of the shuffler button, or on the dealer push. If a hand starts at the prior level by mistake, the hand will continue at the prior level after SA occurs (Rule 36).

B. CHIP RACE, SCHEDULED COLOR UPS

a. At scheduled color-ups, chips will be raced off starting in seat 1, with a maximum of one chip awarded to a player. Players can't be raced out of play: a player losing his or her last chip(s) in a race will get 1 chip of the lowest denomination still in play.

b. Players must have their chips fully visible and are encouraged to witness the chip race.

c. If after the race, a player still has chips of a removed denomination, they will be exchanged for current denominations only at equal value. Chips of removed denominations that do not fully total at least the smallest denomination still in play will be removed without compensation.

C. CARDS & CHIPS KEPT VISIBLE, COUNTABLE, & MANAGABLE. DISCRETIONARY COLOR-UPS

a. Players, dealers, and the floor are entitled to a reasonable estimation of chip counts; thus, chips should be kept in countable stacks. The TDA recommends clean vertical stacks of 20 same denomination chips each as a standard. Higher denomination chips must be visible and identifiable at all times. If a

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited floor person cannot look at a chipstack and quickly estimate its value, players likely can't either.

b. TDs control the number and denominations of chips in play and may color up one or more players at their discretion at any time. Discretionary color ups are to be announced.

c. Players must keep live hands in plain view at all times.

D. DECK CHANGES

Deck changes will be on the dealer push or level changes or as prescribed by the house. Players may not ask for deck changes.

E. RE-BUYS

Players may not miss a hand. Players declaring intent to rebuy before a hand are playing chips behind and must make the re-buy.

F. RABBIT HUNTING

Rabbit hunting (revealing cards that would have come if the hand had not ended) is not allowed.

G. CALLING FOR A CLOCK

Players should act in a timely manner to maintain a reasonable pace of the game. If in TD's judgement reasonable time has passed, they may call the clock or approve a clock request by any player in the event. Players must be at their seats to call for a clock (Rule 30). A player on the clock has up to 25 seconds plus a 5 second countdown to act. If the player faces a bet and time expires, the hand is dead; if not facing a bet, the hand is checked. A tie goes to the player. TDs may adjust the time allowed and take other steps to fit the game and stop persistent delays. See also Rules 2 and 70

5. PLAYER PRESENT / ELIGIBLE FOR HAND

A. AT YOUR SEAT AND LIVE HANDS

To have a live hand, players must be at their seats when the last card is dealt to all players on the initial deal. Players not then at their seats may not look at their cards which are killed immediately. Their posted blinds and antes forfeit to the pot and an absent player dealt the stud bring-in card posts the bring-in. "At your seat" means in

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited reach of your chair. This rule is not intended to encourage players to be out of their seats while in a hand.

B. AT THE TABLE WITH ACTION PENDING

Players with live hands (including players all-in or otherwise finished betting) must remain at the table for all betting rounds and showdown. Leaving the table is incompatible with protecting your hand and following the action and is subject to penalty.

6. BUTTON / BLINDS

A. DEAD BUTTON

Tournament play will use a dead button.

B. DODGING BLINDS

Players who intentionally dodge any blind will incur a penalty.

C. BUTTON IN HEADS-UP

a. If incorrect button movement is discovered before SA occurs, the error will be corrected. However, if SA has occurred, play will continue. Ex: If the button is moved twice and SA occurs the error will stand, the button will not be backed-up on the next hand. All players have a responsibility to monitor button placement and speak up if they see a mistake (Rule 2)

b. Heads-up, the small blind position is given the button, is dealt the last card, and acts first pre-flop and last on all other betting rounds. Starting heads-up play, the button may need to be adjusted to ensure no player has the big blind twice in a row.

7. DEALING RULES

A. MISDEALS AND FOULED DECKS

a. Misdeals include but are not necessarily limited to: 1) 2 or more boxed cards on the initial deal; 2) first card dealt to the wrong seat; 3) cards dealt to a seat not entitled to a hand; 4) a seat entitled to a hand is dealt out; 5) the wrong number of cards is dealt to any player (except Rule 37); 6) Before SA, a non-standard card for the game type is found (example: jokers, 2-3-4-5 in

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited short deck); 7) In flop games, if 1 of the first 2 cards dealt off the deck or any other 2 downcards are exposed by dealer error. House rules apply for draw games (ex: lowball).

b. Players may be dealt 2 consecutive cards on the button (see also Rule 37).

c. In misdeals, the re-deal is an exact re-play: the button does not move, no new players are seated, and limits stay the same. Cards are dealt to players who were dealt in but not at their seats for the original deal (Rule 30). Players on penalty who were originally dealt in will receive cards then their hands are killed. The original deal and re-deal count as one hand for a player on penalty, not two.

d. Once substantial action occurs (see Rule 7-C) a misdeal cannot be declared; the hand must proceed unless the deck is fouled. Non-standard cards found after SA are treated as scraps of paper (exception: fouled decks).

B. FOULED DECKS.

If 2 or more cards of the same suit and rank are found, the deck is fouled. Other fouled deck conditions may be defined by local gaming regulations and house policy. If a fouled deck is discovered, regardless of SA, play will stop and all bets will be returned. Once a hand concludes, the right to dispute based on a fouled deck ends according to Rule 22.

C. SUBSTANTIAL ACTION (SA)

Substantial Action is either A) any 2 actions in turn, at least one of which puts chips in the pot (i.e. any 2 actions except 2 checks or 2 folds) or B) any combination of 3 actions in turn (check, bet, raise, call, fold). Posted blinds do not count towards SA. See Rules 7-E& 8-N.

D. BUTTON WITH TOO FEW CARDS

A player on the button dealt too few cards should announce it immediately. Missing button cards may be replaced even after substantial action if permitted for the game type. However, if the button acts on a hand with too few cards (by check or bet), the button's hand is dead.

E. BURNS AFTER SUBSTANTIAL ACTION

The burn card is to protect the stub, not "preserve card order". If SA occurs and a hand is killed due to the wrong number of cards, all cards of the killed hand are

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited mucked and randomness applies to further dealing (See also RP-14 Randomness). The stub is treated as a normal stub and one and only one card is burned off the stub for each subsequent street. The burn is always one card per street, never more. See Illustration Addendum.

F. IRREGULAR FLOPS & PREMATURE-DEALT CARDS

a. 4-Card Flops. If the flop has 4 rather than 3 cards, exposed or not, and regardless of whether the door card is presumed known, the floor will be called. The dealer then scrambles the 4 cards face down, the floor randomly selects 1 as the next burn card and the other 3 are the flop (See also RP-14 Randomness).

b. If there was no burn on a 3-card flop, exposed or not and regardless of whether the door card is presumed known, if no action has occurred, the 3 cards are scrambled face down, one chosen as the burn. The flop will be the other 2 cards plus the next card off the stub. If any action (even one check) has occurred, play proceeds with the initial 3 cards. Only one card is burned for the turn.

c. For prematurely dealt cards, see Recommended Procedure 5.

d. Reshuffling During a Hand. To protect game integrity, anytime the stub must be re-shuffled during the play of a hand, the cards must be shuffled face-down and unexposed. Examples include premature cards (Rule 39 and RP-5), disordered stub (RP-4), extra draw or stud cards (RP-10-H), etc.

8. PLAY: BETS & RAISES

A. METHODS OF BETTING: VERBAL AND CHIPS

a. Bets are by verbal declaration and/or pushing out chips. If a player does both, whichever is first defines the bet. If simultaneous, a clear and reasonable verbal declaration takes precedence, otherwise the chips play. In unclear situations or where verbal and chips are contradictory, the TD will determine the bet based on the circumstances and Rule 1. See Illustration Addendum. See also Rule 57.

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

b. Verbal declarations may be general ("call", "raise"), a specific amount only ("one thousand") or both ("raise, one thousand").

c. For all betting rules, declaring a specific amount only is the same as silently pushing out an equal amount. Ex: Declaring "two hundred" is the same as silently pushing out 200 in chips.

B. METHODS OF CALLING

Standard and acceptable forms of calling include: A) saying "call"; B) pushing out chips equal to a call; C) silently pushing out an overchip; or D) silently pushing out multiple chips equal to a call under the multi-chip rule (Rule 45). Silently betting chip(s) relatively tiny to the bet (ex: blinds 2k-4k. A bets 50k, B then silently puts out one 1k chip) is non-standard, strongly discouraged, subject to penalty, and will be interpreted at TDs discretion, including being ruled a full call.

C. METHODS OF RASING

In no-limit or pot-limit, a raise must be made by A) pushing out the full amount in one motion; B) verbally declaring the full amount prior to pushing out chips. It is the responsibility of players to make their intentions clear. Note: 2-motion raises eliminated in 2019.

D. RAISE AMOUNTS

a. A raise must be at least equal to the largest prior full bet or raise of the current betting round. A player who raises 50% or more of the largest prior bet but less than a minimum raise must make a full minimum raise.
If less than 50% it is a call unless "raise" is first declared or the player is all-in (Rule 45-B). Declaring an amount or pushing out the same amount of chips is treated the same (Rule 40-C). Ex: NLHE, opening bet is 1000, verbally declaring "Fourteen hundred" or silently pushing out 1400 in chips are both calls unless raise is first declared. See Illustration Addendum.

b. Without other clarifying information, declaring raise and an amount is the total bet. Ex: A opens for 2000, B declares "Raise, eight thousand." The total bet is 8000.

E. OVERSIZED CHIP BETTING (OVERCHIPS)

If facing a bet or blind, pushing out a single oversized chip (including your last chip) is a call if raise isn't first declared. To raise with an overchip you must declare raise

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited before the chip hits the table surface. If raise is declared but no amount is stated, the raise is the maximum allowable for the chip. If not facing a bet, pushing out an overchip silently (no declaration) is a bet of the maximum for the chip.

F. MULTIPLE CHIP BETTING

a. If facing a bet, unless raise or all-in is declared first, a multiple-chip bet (including a bet of your last chips) is a call if every chip is needed to make the call; i.e. removal of just one of the smallest chips leaves less than the call amount. Ex-1: Player A opens for 400: B raises to 1100 total (a 700 raise), C puts out one 500 and one 1000 chip silently. This is a call because removing the 500 chip leaves less than the 1100 call amount. Ex-2: NLHE 25-50. Post-flop A opens for 1050 and B puts out his last chips (two 1000's). B calls unless raise or all-in was first declared.

b. If every chip is not needed to make the call; i.e. removing just one of the smallest chips leaves the call amount or more: 1) if the player has chips remaining, the 50% standard in Rule 43 governs the bet. 2) A bet of a player's last chip(s) is an all-in bet whether reaching the 50% threshold or not. See Addendum.

G. PRIOR BET CHIPS NOT PULLED IN

a. To avoid confusion, players with prior-bet chips not yet pulled in who face a raise should verbalize their action before adding chips to the prior bet.

b. If facing a raise, clearly pulling back a prior bet chip binds a player to call or raise; they may not put the chip(s) back out and fold.

c. If new chip(s) are added silently and the bet is unclear to the house, the call and raise rules 41-45 apply as follows: 1) If prior chips don't cover the call AND are either left alone OR fully pulled back, an overchip is a call and multiple new chips are subject to the 50% raise standard (Rule 43). 2) If prior chips are partly pulled back OR if prior chips cover the call, the combined final chip bet is a raise if reaching the 50% standard (Rules 43 & 45), if less it is a call. See Illustration Addendum.

H. RE-OPENING THE BET

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

a. In no-limit and pot limit, an all-in wager (or cumulative multiple short all-ins) totaling less than a full bet or raise will not reopen betting for players who have already acted and are not facing at least a full bet or raise when the action returns to them. If multiple short all-ins re-open the betting, the minimum raise is always the last full valid bet or raise of the round. (See Rule 8-D.a.

b. In limit, at least 50% of a full bet or raise is required to re-open betting for players who have already acted. See Illustration Addendum.

I. NUMBER OF ALLOWABLE RAISES

There is no cap on the number of raises in no-limit and pot-limit. In limit play, there is a limit to raises even when heads-up until the event is down to 2 players; the house limit applies.

J. ACCEPTED ACTION

Poker is a game of alert, continuous observation. It is the caller's responsibility to determine the correct amount of an opponent's bet before calling, regardless of what is stated by others. If a caller requests a count but receives incorrect information from a dealer or player, then pushes out that amount or declares call, the caller has accepted the full correct action & is subject to the correct wager or all-in amount. As with all situations, Rule 1 may apply at TD's discretion. See also RP-12.

K. ACTING IN TURN

a. Players must act in turn verbally and/or by pushing out chips. Action in turn is binding and commits chips to the pot that stay in the pot.

b. Players must wait for clear bet amounts before acting. Ex: NLHE, A says "raise" (but no amount), and B quickly folds. B should wait to act until A's raise amount is clear.

L. BIDDING DECLARATIONS/UNDERCALLS IN TURN

a. General verbal declarations in turn (such as "call" or "raise") commit a player to the full current action. See Illustration Addendum

b. A player undercalls by declaring or pushing out less than the call amount without first declaring "call". An undercall is a mandatory full call if made in

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited turn facing 1) any bet heads-up or 2) the opening bet on any round multi-way. In other situations, TD's discretion applies. The opening bet is the first chip bet of each betting round (not a check). In blind games the posted Big Blind, hereby referred to as "BB." is the pre-flop opener. All-in buttons reduce undercall frequency (See Recommended Procedure 1). This rule governs when players must make a full call and when, at TDs discretion they may forfeit the amount of the intended undercall and fold (see Illustration Addendum). For underbets and underraises, see Rule 8-M..

c. If two or more undercalls occur in sequence, play backs up to the first undercaller who must correct his or her bet per Rule 8-L.b.. The TD will determine how to treat hands of the remaining bettors based on the circumstances.

M. INCORRECT BETS, UNDERBETS & UNDERRAISES

a. In limit and no-limit, opening or raising less than the minimum legal amount is corrected anywhere on the current street (if on the river any time before showdown starts). Ex: NLHE 100-200, post-flop A opens for 600 and B raises to 1000 (a 200 underraise). C and D call, E folds then the error is noticed. Increase the bet to 1200 total for all bettors any time before the turn is dealt. After the turn the error stands. For undercalls, see Rule 8-L.

b. In pot limit, if a player underbets the pot based on an inaccurate count, if the pot count is too high (an illegal bet), it will be corrected for all players anywhere on the current street; if too low, corrected until substantial action occurs after the bet. See Illustration Addendum.

N. ACTION OUT OF TURN (OOT)

a. Any action out of turn (check, call, or raise) will be backed up to the correct player in order. The OOT action is subject to penalty and is binding if action to the OOT player does not change. A check, call or fold by the correct player does not change action. If action changes, the OOT action is not binding; any bet or raise is returned to the OOT player who has all options: call, raise, or fold. An OOT fold is binding. See Illustration Addendum.

b. Players skipped by OOT action must defend their right to act. If a skipped player had reasonable time and does not speak up before substantial action

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited (Rule 7-C) OOT occurs after the player, the OOT action is binding. Action backs up and the floor will rule on how to treat the skipped hand given the circumstances, including ruling the hand dead or limiting the player to non-aggressive action. See Addendum.

O. POT SIZE & POT-LIMIT BETS

a. Players are entitled to a pot count in pot-limit only. Dealers will not count the pot in limit and no-limit.

b. Pre-flop a dead or short all-in blind will not affect calculation of the maximum pot limit bet. All pre-flop pot and re-pot bets will assume full blinds were posted. Ex 1: PLO, 100-200 blinds, dead SB, BB posts 200. Ex 2: SB posts 100, BB short posts 100. In both examples the pot-limit bet for first player to act is 700.

c. Post-flop, bets are based on actual pot size.

d. Declaring "I bet the pot" is not a valid bet in no-limit but it does bind the player to making a valid bet (at least a minimum bet) and may be subject to penalty. Players facing a bet must make a valid raise.

P. INVALID BRT DECLARATIONS

If a player faces no bet and: A) declares "call", it is a check; B) declares "raise", the player must make at least a minimum bet. A player declaring "check" when facing a bet may call or fold but cannot raise.

Q. STRING BETS AND RAISES

Dealers will call string bets and raises.

R. NON-STANDARD & UNCLEAR BETTING

S. Players use unofficial betting terms and gestures at their own risk. These may be interpreted to mean other than what the player intended. Also, if a declared bet can legally have multiple meanings, it will be ruled the highest reasonable amount that is less than or equal to the pot size before the bet. Ex: NLHE 200-400, the pot totals less than 5000, player declares "I bet five." With no other clarifying information, the bet is 500; if the pot totals 5000 or more, the bet is 5000. The pot is the total of all prior bets including any bets in front of a player not yet pulled in. See Rules A – 11-13, 17, 19, 20-23NON-STANDARD FOLDS

Attention:
This document contains PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION intended only for the use of the individual(s) named above. If you are not an intended recipient of this document, you are hereby notified that any dissemination or copying of this document is strictly prohibited

Any time before the end of the final betting round, folding in turn if there's no bet to you (ex: facing a check or first to act post-flop) or folding out of turn are binding folds subject to penalty. See also 15-B.

T. CONDITIONAL & PREMATURE DECLARATIONS

a. Conditional statements of future action are non-standard and strongly discouraged. At TDs discretion they may be binding and/or penalized. Example: "if – then" statements such as "If you bet, I will raise."

b. If Player A declares "bet" or "raise" and B calls before A's exact bet amount is known, the TD will rule the bet as best fits the situation including possibly obliging B to call any amount.

U. COUNT OF OPPONENTS CHIP STACK

Players, dealers, and the floor are entitled to a reasonable estimation of opponents' chip stacks (Rule 25). A player may request a more precise count only if facing an all-in bet and it is his or her turn to act. The all-in player is not required to count; on request the dealer or floor will count it. Accepted action applies (Rule 49). Visible and countable chip stacks (Rule 25) greatly improve counting accuracy.

V. OVER-BETTING EXPECTING CHANGE

Betting should not be used to obtain change. Pushing out more than the intended bet can confuse everyone at the table. All chips pushed out silently are at risk of being counted in the bet. Ex: the opening bet is 325 to player A who silently puts out 525 (one 500 and one 25), expecting 200 change. This is a raise to 650 under the multiple chip rule (Rule 45).

W. ALL-IN WITH CHIPS FOUND BEHIND LATER

If A bets all-in and a hidden chip is found behind after a player calls, the TD will determine if the chip behind is part of accepted action (Rule 49). If not part of the action, A is not paid off for the chip(s) if he or she wins. If A loses, he or she is not saved by the chip(s) and the TD may award the chip(s) to the winning caller.

9. PLAY – OTHER

A. CHIPS OUT OF VIEW AND IN TRANSIT

Players may not hold or transport chips in a way that takes them out of view. A player who does so will forfeit the chips and may be disqualified. The forfeited chips will be taken out of play. The TDA recommends the house provide racks or bags to transport chips when needed.

B. LOST AND FOUND CHIPS

Lost and found chips for which ownership cannot be determined will be taken out of play and returned to tournament inventory.

C. ACCIDENTALLY KILLED / FOULED/ EXPOSED HANDS

a. Players must protect their hands at all times, including at showdown while waiting for hands to be read. If the dealer kills a hand by mistake or if in TDs judgement a hand is fouled and cannot be identified to 100% certainty, the player has no redress and is not entitled to a refund of called bets. If the player initiated a bet or raise and hasn't been called, the uncalled amount will be returned.

b. If a hand is fouled but can be identified, it remains in play despite any cards exposed.

D. DEAD HANDS AND MUCKING IN STUD

In stud poker, if a player picks up the upcards while facing action, the hand is dead. Proper mucking in stud is turning down all up cards and pushing them all forward face down.

10. ETIQUETTE & PENALTIES

A. NO DISCLOSURE. ONE PLAYER TO A HAND

Players must protect other players in the tournament at all times. Therefore players, whether in the hand or not, must not:

a. Discuss contents of live or mucked hands,

b. Advise or criticize play at any time,

c. Read a hand that hasn't been tabled.

One-player-to-a-hand is in effect. Among other things, this rule prohibits showing a hand to or discussing strategy with another player, advisor, or spectator.

B. EXPOSING CARDS AND PROPER FOLDING

Exposing cards with action pending, including the current player when last to act, may result in a penalty but not a dead hand. Any penalty begins at the end of the hand. When folding, cards should be pushed forward low to the table, not deliberately exposed or tossed high ("helicoptered"). See Rule 9-C.

C. ETHICAL PLAY

Poker is an individual game. Soft play will result in penalties, which may include chip forfeiture and/or disqualification. Chip dumping and other forms of collusion will result in disqualification.

D. ETIQUETTE VIOLATIONS

Etiquette violations are subject to enforcement actions in Rule 71. Examples include but are not limited to: persistent delay of the game; unnecessarily touching another player's person, cards or chips; repeatedly acting out of turn; maintaining poor card or chip visibility and countability; betting out of reach of the dealer; abusive conduct; offensive hygiene; and excessive chatter.

E. WARNINGS, PENALTIES, & DISQUALIFICATION

a. Enforcement options include but are not limited to verbal warnings, one or more "missed hand" or "missed round" penalties, and disqualification. For missed rounds, the offender will miss one hand for every player (including him or her) at the table when the penalty is given multiplied by the number of penalty rounds. Repeat infractions are subject to escalating penalties. Players away from the table or on penalty may be anted or blinded out of a tournament.

b. A penalty may be invoked for etiquette violations (Rule 70), card exposure with action pending, throwing cards, violating one-player-to-a-hand, or similar incidents. Penalties will be given for soft play, abuse, disruptive behavior, dodging blinds or cheating. Checking the exclusive nuts when last to act on the river is not an automatic soft play violation; TD's discretion applies based on the situation.

c. Players on penalty must be away from the table. Cards are dealt to their
